

7/8/26 - Overview Map

Literature was reread and examined to reinforce contextual anchors

I am exploring

Black feminist geographies in Cambridge, MA

- Locating

- Visualizing

Critical GIS applications to Black feminist geographies

By doing

Qualitative analysis of contextual interviews with local Black women

ArcGIS visualization of uncovered geographies + documentation of visualization process

GIS can include multimodal data and visualize several scales, lending itself to plurality

So that

ArcGIS goal?

↳ too specific?

- ArcGIS may be considered as a tool for highlighting Black women's geographies
- Critical / Feminist GIS practices expand to more clearly acknowledge Black feminist geographies
- Black women's geographies are made more legible to urban scholars and human geographers

↳ What is the importance of doing so?

↳ Kelly - "make way for the worlds we need"

McKillop, 2006. Demonic Grounds

- Queen's University, Prof. of Gender Studies
- Published with U of MN Press

Black feminist/women's geographies disrupt traditional geographic practices and understandings by interpreting and constructing space through a distinct racial-sexual perspective that "tells a different geographic story"

Presents an opportunity to unlock new visualization/design possibilities by attempting to convey these different geographic stories

Kwan, 2002, GIS as Fem. Geo. Method

- "To understand the gendered experience of individuals across multiple axes of difference"
- "To represent the world in ways that question or destabilize dominant representations"
- "can experiment and create new visual practices"

Kelly, 2023, Feminist Geography and Geospatial Tech

- There is extensive exploration of feminist influences and approaches to cartography, but geospatial tech remains underexplored
- Specifically explores geospatial tech and feminist geography - "Black Feminist thought and intersectionality"
- Persistent division between critical GIS and feminism/GISci
 - * "critical GIS emerged as a direct take-up of feminist critiques"
- Condenses and reorganizes data feminism w/ respect to feminist geography and mapping

McLafferty, 2002, Mapping Women's Worlds

- Add'l info on knowledge acquisition is needed to more fully integrate qual + quant data
- "GIS is a social practice"
- "we need to examine how GIS is used and by whom"
- "Tapping the strengths of GIS and feminist methodologies and melding them to create new forms of knowledge and empowerment offers exciting prospects for geographic inquiry"

Contextual anchors examined from 7/8 - 7/10

7/10/26 - Overview Map

I am exploring:

How GIS tools may be used to visualize Black feminist geographies and how this visualization disrupts the traditional perspective/uses of GIS

By:

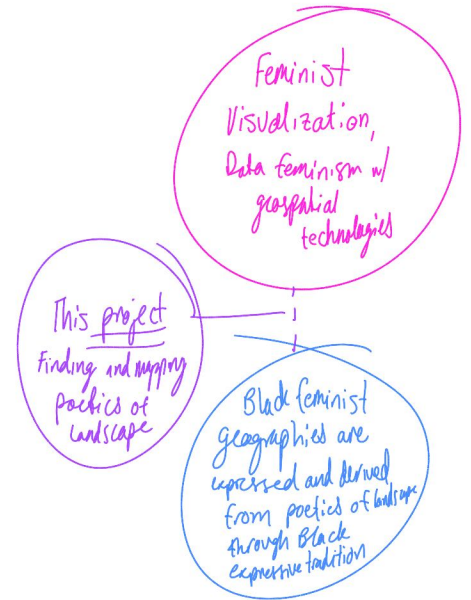

Analysing oral histories of Black women in Cambridge Visualizing the expressed geographies in ArcGIS and documenting the process

Pivoting to oral histories due to lack of interviews

In order to:

Expand discussions of critical GIS to specifically incorporate Black feminist geographies

(re) Position GIS as a Black feminist tool

"relationship between writer/speaker and the landscape makes history and brings the subject into being"

Madlyn Patterson Johnson *

- Peabody on Linnaean St (name changed)
- "The high school" - Cambridge HS?
- "Growing up I didn't feel any racism"
- Friends on the coast
- White passing (implied)
- Sundays: Christ Church → Brigham → PPI's houses
- Lifelong Cantabrigdian (4-5 generations)

Robin McCre

- Born, raised in Cambridge
- Worked in Cambridge her whole life
- Probation Officer w/ Cambridge District Court
- 1st Black woman
- First Black assistant court magistrate
- BU Mba - Many colleges, maybe their archives?

Paula Paris *

- Father (veteran) denied GI loan
- Carey (sold her family home), Blackman who sold to Black families
- Concord Ave. (X of Fayweather St + Concord Ave)
- MEd - North Cambridge
- West Cambridge
- Huron Village - "now in its most gentrified state"
- Neighborhood of professional and working class Black families

Jeanette Pina *

- North Cambridge
- Friends and family on Compton Ave
- Most people they knew owned their homes
- Peabody School - Brownies

Unclear time range!!!

embodied and affective experiences (pride, joy, frustration)

can/should I seek out add'l information

How does/can work be a key part of some women's geographies

Gentrification as a point of frustration and disappointment

Common Streets and Places!!!! Could focus on women of a particular age

Linda Johnson

- "Totally integrated" growing up
- Now only one of a few Black families

Charlene Reese

- Robert Schaefer (Fletcher Raymond)
- Cambridge High and Latin
- Dis encouraged from higher education

Phyllis Janey *

- "we knew our neighbors"
- A residential area
- Walkable - "a big plus"
- 2 grammar schools, she lived on the zoning line
- 1st and only Black teacher in 7th Grade - Peabody Grammar School
- Integrated School - Post 1954

Black girls geographies, most of these women re-count time in Grammar School

Marion Darlington-Hope *

- Faculty at Lesley University
- UMass Boston

- Grew up in the Port
- called that by the residents
- Area 4 is a federal designation
- "Now identified as a Black neighborhood by some of our politicians"
- Actually very diverse
- Same neighborhood she grew up in
- Parents from Barbados
- "Diversity was forgotten"
- Port Organizing Group

renaming of neighborhoods as an act of classification and definition

Heavily discussed the diversity of her neighborhood, directly challenging the dominant defining of the area. An act of refusal

Gloria Bourne Lee

- West Indian Barbados family
- Best friend on Fayweather St
- Track Star, started running because of a friend
- Dean College in Franklin

Less relevant? but corroborates a repeated street

Elsie Thornhill Harding Scott *

- "Cambridge native"
- Pine Street
- "I cannot say we ever had a problem about race"
- Cherry + Pine St, Margaret Fuller House
- "The place to be" after school

Elaine Thorne *

- Born and raised in "The Coast" → "very large Bk community"
- City designation: Riverside
- Strong Ties to Barbados (2nd gen American)
- Hopkinton elementary, Cambridge High
- Putnam Gardens, Cambridge housing project
- Loved and disciplined by neighborhood elders
- "Center child" - Cambridge Community Center

Danita Callender

- "Nurturing, loving environment"
- "Strong sense of community"
- Abraham Lincoln School on Walden St
- Mc Fitz School on Bridge Ave
- North Cambridge

Joan Johnson

- Day Camp at Cambridge Community Center

Patricia Lewis *

- "Neighborly"
- Barber shop 2 blocks from the house
- Fayweather St, Granville Road
- "Once you cross Vesal Lane, everybody was white"

Leslie Gore

- "The beauty, the diversity, the history"
- "I think Cambridge is the greatest place on Earth"
- St Paul's Cathedral - Lit a candle for JFK

The sense of pride is palpable, even more so than the other women

Chandra Banks

- Cambridge Ruge and Latin Parties were exclusive to students
- Driving to NY to get the newest records, to hear Hip Hop in Cambridge
- The Source Magazine
- 80s/90s - early Hip Hop
- Hip Hop → violence prevention
- Spelmanite!!!!

This is the first interview from a later period. Should I try to focus on 80s/90s? Because it might be a smaller collection

Lois McGhee

- 116 Fayweather Street
- Carried around a victrola to play her records
- Smiling Jack's - Mass Ave near the bridge
- "Walking across Concord Avenue"

Toni Phillips

- Married into a Cambridge family in 1971
- "Mostly way one I met were from Barbados"
- An easy transition w/ support system

Shari Callender

- Religious as an adult due to her grandmother's role in her upbringing
- Mass Ave w/o crosswalks

Linda Jackson Ezell

- Loved school, was always eager to go
- Played hokey in high school to go see the Blob in Downtown Boston

Wilhelmina Lewis

- Granville Road, good and bad
- Russell School
- Cambridge High and Latin

Kamala Harrington

- A creative, furniture design and music
- Just A-Start teachers, "around the corner" from Public Library
- Worked in construction and met new kinds of people
- Friendly, petty rivalry w/ Bostonians

Kafi Harrington

- 5th gen Cantabrigdian
- "it really does call you back"
- "just the right mix of urban and suburban"
- Very familiar with the Subway, almost nostalgic
- "Small town who burg a small town"
- Only one high school

Laments how "transient" and disconnected from community people have become

Chandra Harrington

- Born, raised, and lived most of her life in Cambridge
- 1st grade through college in Cambridge
- Private School education - Lessey Ellis on Concord Avenue
- Christian High School on Garden St
- She went to Harvard
- Radcliffe for female students
- Cooked for Julia Child

7/14/26 - Familiarization OH

* 37 Years as an urban planner for community development with the City of Cambridge

"the backbone of how the city works"

"being aware of all of the issues in neighborhoods"

The Coast (Riverside) born and raised

Family (from Barbados) settled in the Port

Now the king → Houghton Elementary → Cambridge High and Latin (c/o 1969)

Raised her deceased sister's daughter

* Excited to talk about childhood, audibly more energetic family, community are "strong" sense of pride
Putnam Gardens - Cambridge Housing Authority development
"Loved" and "disciplined" by elders in the neighborhood
Walked to and from school in grammar and high school

* Cambridge Community Center

• Freedom School - early 1960s

• Lessons about the ongoing civil rights movement

• Porgie and Bess - "plays at the center"

"Rich in a lot of ways"

Raised her children in this neighborhood which
"has changed, but kept its roots"

5th-8th grade bedridden w/childhood disease.

Time in the Children's Hospital
• noticed wide ranges of class, origins, experiences.
• Became more aware of differences in wealth and "seeing what money can do"

Community involvement
• St Augustine's Church on Alston St (child)
• Western Ave Baptist Church (young adult)
• Predominantly Black Church
• very involved in the Church
• Green St w/ the Watsons
• 216 Green St - 6 Family Home
• "We knew people at the Dunbar"
• Parents rented, but Green St was owned

Lived on Green St → Putnam Gardens → Green St
Need a timeline

* Bung Black in Cambridge

- Became more vocal during time at Hospital and returned to neighborhood with this vocality
- "People who were entitled or empowered got what they needed"
- Noticing differences in power early and insured herself to change/make differences smaller
- "The expectations for [children of color] were not the same" and required strong neighborhoods to succeed
- City planning perspective allowed firsthand awareness of to whom and where power and resources were allocated

* Diverse Community

• White families lived in Putnam Gardens, but attended St Paul School

• Greek, Asian, White, Black
• "very visible demography in schools ... more so than today"

Most impactful Black teacher in her schooling lived on the corner of Concord and Elpine

• Another Black populated neighborhood "that has changed"

Family - Barbados - St Michael's and Christ Church

• Mat. Grandfather followed family to Cambridge, settled on Eaton St

• Pat. Grandfather came from Nova Scotia

• Mother was Pentecostal Church

37 Columbia St
until 11 when both parents deceased

• Leisure/Fun Activities - more excitement

• "Center Children"

• Played outside, sat on steps with parents in the evenings

• Ice Skated Hoyt Field, Roller Skated Community center

• Library

• Dinner at Simone's or Joy Fong in Cent Sq

7/14/26 - Familiarization - OHI (cont'd)

- Bought and owns a home in Riverside since 1988
- Stayed in Cambridge for family community support system

* Cambridge of Today

- "Demographics have changed tremendously"
 - Cost of living or housing sales pushed many "of the families [she] grew up with" out of Cambridge
 - Does not know many of the people in her current neighborhood
 - Community looks different, for better or worse
- * Notes a few instances of microaggressions, people being more individualistic

7/14/26 - Familiarization - OH2

* Growing up in Cambridge

- Born 1931, unclear of location

• 1931-1936 - Pine St

• 1936 - Windsor St

- Parents owns the house, now owned by her sons

"A lot of people from Barbados" in Cambridge at this time

• Roberts School "across the street" K-8

• 9-12: Cambridge High and Latin

- "we never really had a problem [with racism]"

• integrated High School

* 1st Helena's Church - 211

- Moore St → Columbia St

• "church was entertainment" "went from church to church"

• Churches called by #s, not names

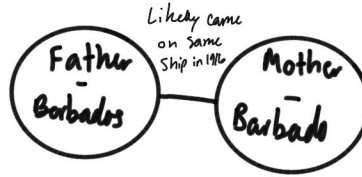

- 77 - Columbia + Washington

• 789 - Main St

• 47 - Howard St

• Scandavian Apothecary - Hampshire + Columbia

One of 10 siblings - musical family, pianists + vocalists

* Margaret Fuller House

- Multi-racial/diverse group of children played there

• "after school, that was the place to be"

* Moving From Cambridge

- Moved in 70s after remarrying

• Moved for husband's job - regretted it

• "All I do is sleep in Franklin"

• Eastern Star - Boston since 1974

- Non-religious women's org

• Based on people of the bible

"auxiliary to the masons"

"social and/or charitable work"

• "There isn't a Black community in Cambridge any more, is there?"

• So many Black families have left references a photo book she uses to show interviewers

* Son enters as well

* Neighborhood House - Moore St + Harvard St

- MfH was preferred

• As an adult/parent, she spends more time in the neighborhood house

• Mother's clubbing nights "downtown"

• Blinstrubs Club

check spelling

* Barbados Influence

- Baysian ?? check spelling

• Churches were entirely Baysian

• "It seemed like everyone was the same"

• Visited all the churches

• "Everyone knew everyone"

* Sings for the Interviewers

Sons interjections/prompting seemed to facilitate memory

7/14/26 - Familiarization Otl 3

* Upbringing

many lapses/struggles with memory

- Born 1946 in Boston
 - Father and Mother also born in Boston
- Mother + 2 sisters lived near Porter Sq before she was born
- Grew up on Copley St "friendly"
- Family on Fayerweather St mostly homeowners
- * Peabody Grammar School K-8 "felt safe"
- Walked w/ sisters, friends, cousins
- Brownies
- * Cambridge High and Latin - c/o 1964 "we didn't have the problems Boston had because it was only one school"
- "only high school that wasn't all boys"
- * Family owned their home
 - Father - Cambridge PD
 - Mother - stay at home mom until widowed
 - 86 Bartholomew, Harvard St
 - 3 sisters, 2 older 1 younger
 - Drive-in near the shopping center
 - Martha's vineyard, visiting distant family > Leisure

* Leaving Cambridge

- Late 1980s
- Employed as a flight attendant, moved in w/ friend-coworker

* Views on Cambridge today?

- "I don't come over here that often"

- Streets becoming one-way or narrower

- Many buildings replaced

- Family home has been sold

"I don't feel that connection" to the place

* Catillians in Cambridge were an anomaly, relevant information could have unique insights.

"relative to everything else was North, North Cambridge"

Need to analyze and re-examine contextual anchors after oral history analysis

I am exploring

how the process of visualizing Black feminist geographies in ArcGIS challenges the traditional geographic assumptions of the platform.

guiding design principles, but not the central theory. part of the design agenda

By design agenda

- Locating Black women's geographies through thematic + narrative analysis of oral histories
- Mapping the located geographies in ArcGIS

In order to research agenda

- reveal alternative design possibilities that expand previous work in Data Feminism and critical GIS
- Consider methods of visually conveying BWG. And if visual modes are the most appropriate means opens the door for future embodied representing

7/21/26 - Contextual Anchor - M. Kwan (2008)

"recover part of the post 9/11 experiences of American Muslims that were obscured by the totalizing master narrative"

"expressive power of geospatial technologies"

"GIS can integrate a wide variety of geographic data and qualitative materials and can provide a multimedia interactive environment for... telling stories about people's lived experiences"

"illustrate how oral histories may be used to construct GIS-based visual narratives"

Highlighting marginalized perspectives and forms of knowledge

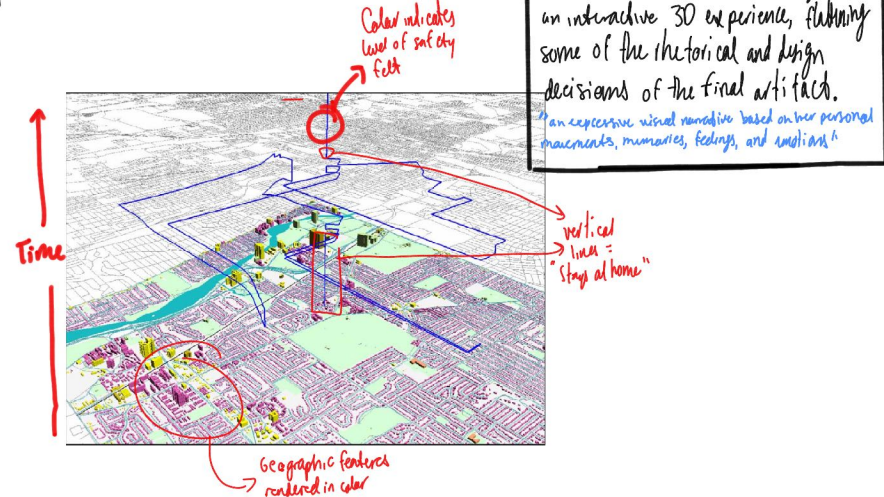

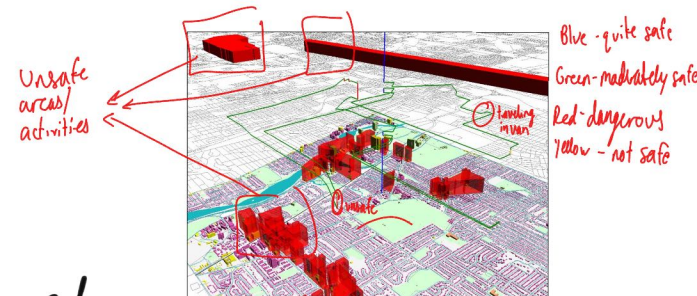

Aligns with previous arguments in critical/feminist GIS

Oral Histories + Diary Data + GIS → visual narrative

"a life path that traces the temporal sequence of events based on a person's activities and trips"

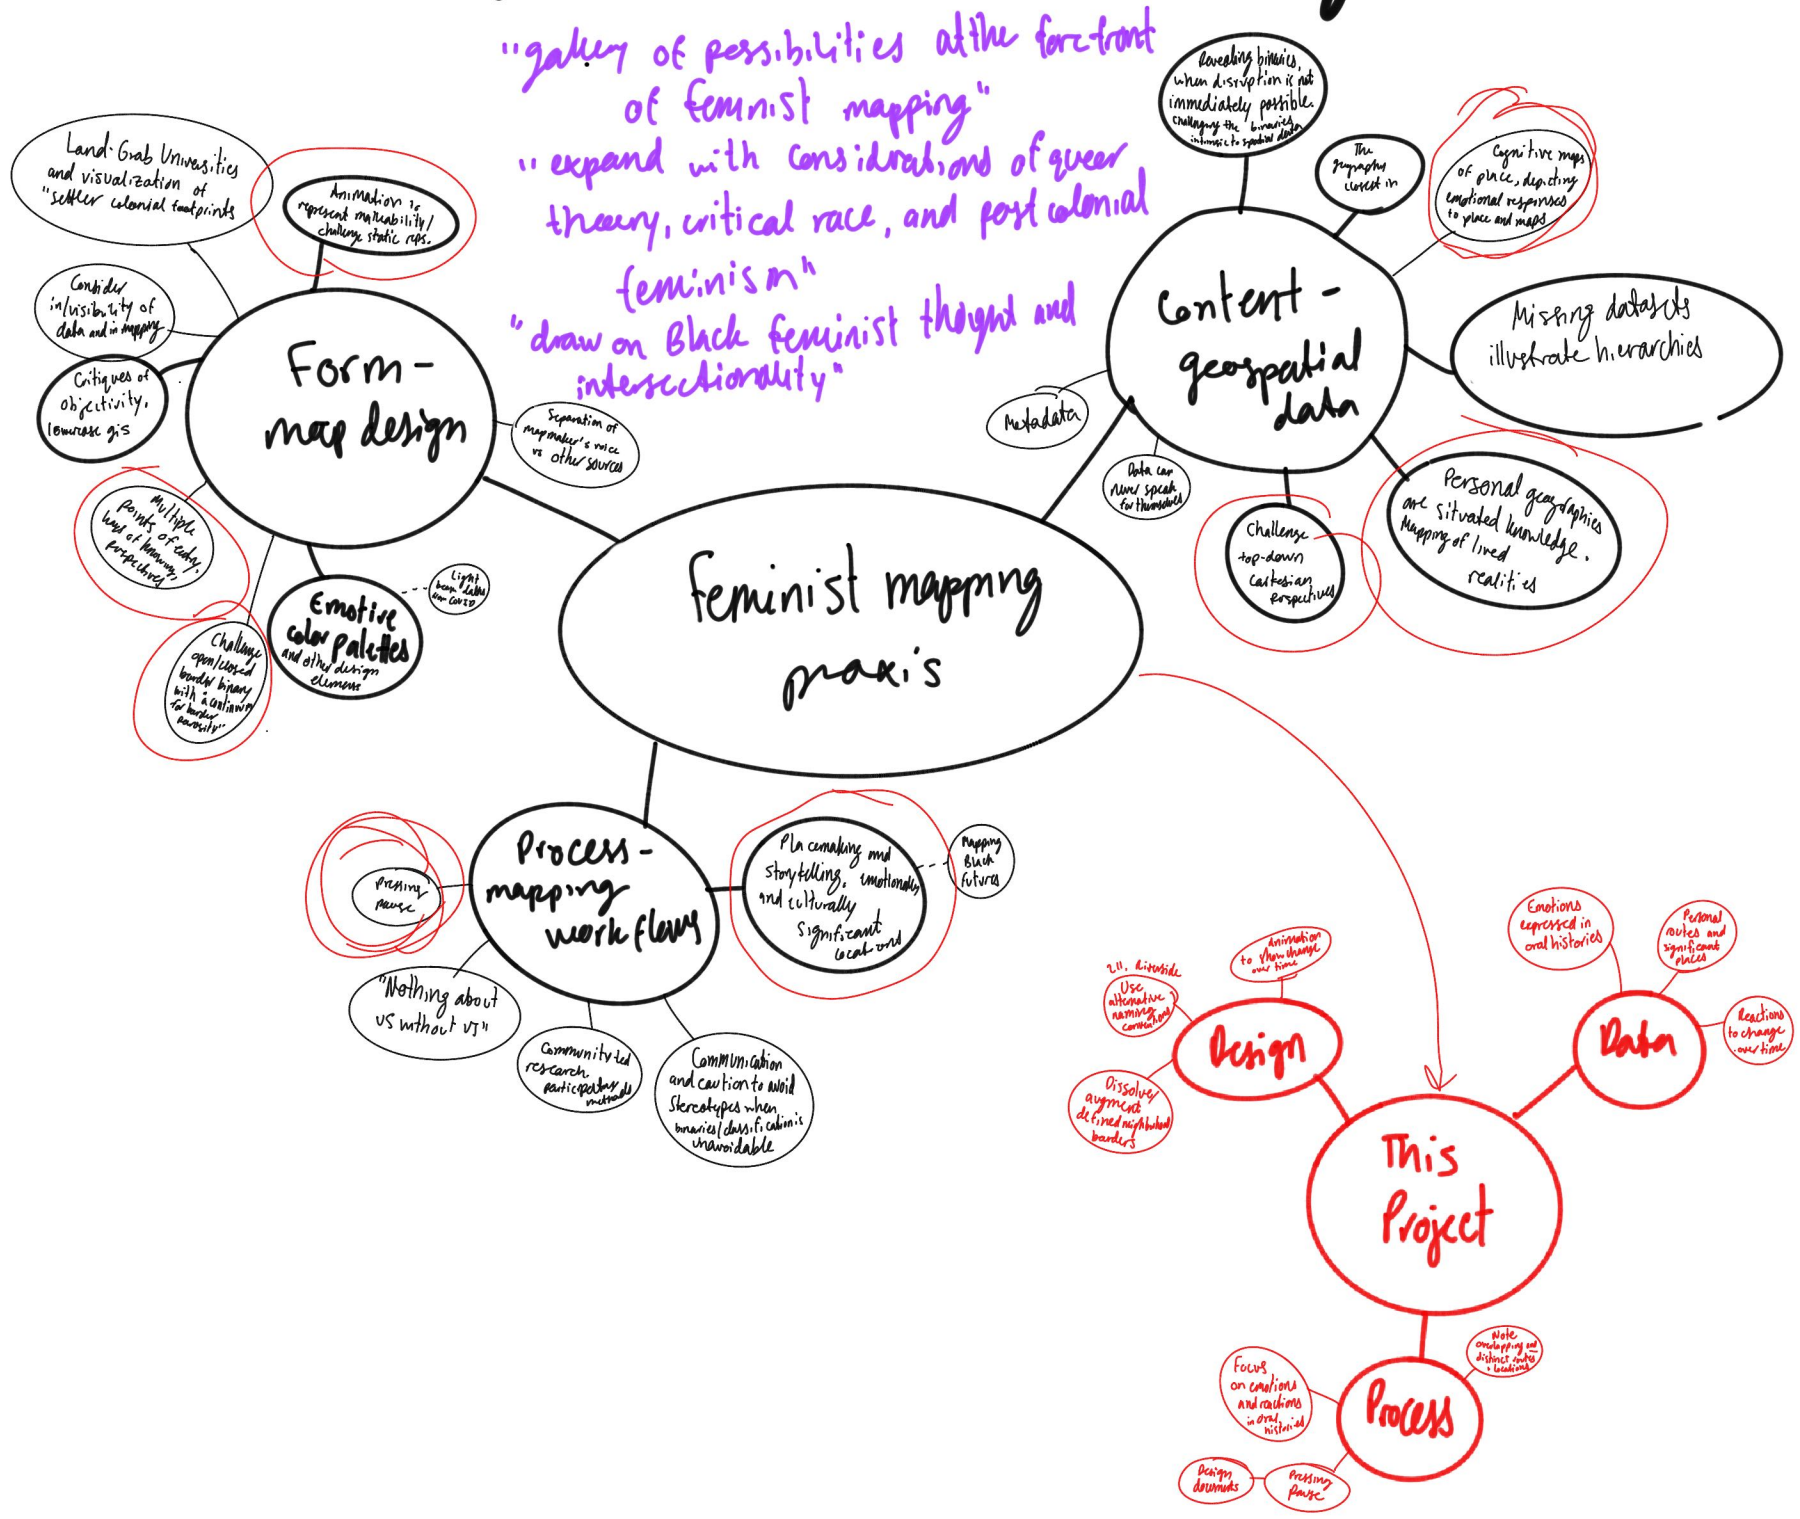

Central narrative device

Background data on buildings, rivers, streets, etc was also incorporated

Both of these are still 2D images of an interactive 3D experience, flattening some of the rhetorical and design decisions of the final artifact. "An expressive visual narrative based on her personal movements, memories, feelings, and emotions."

how mapping Black women's geographies with GIS tools disrupts/challenges dominant assumptions in these tools

By

- Locating Black women's geographies through a thematic analysis of oral histories

- Documenting and reflecting on the design process

In order to

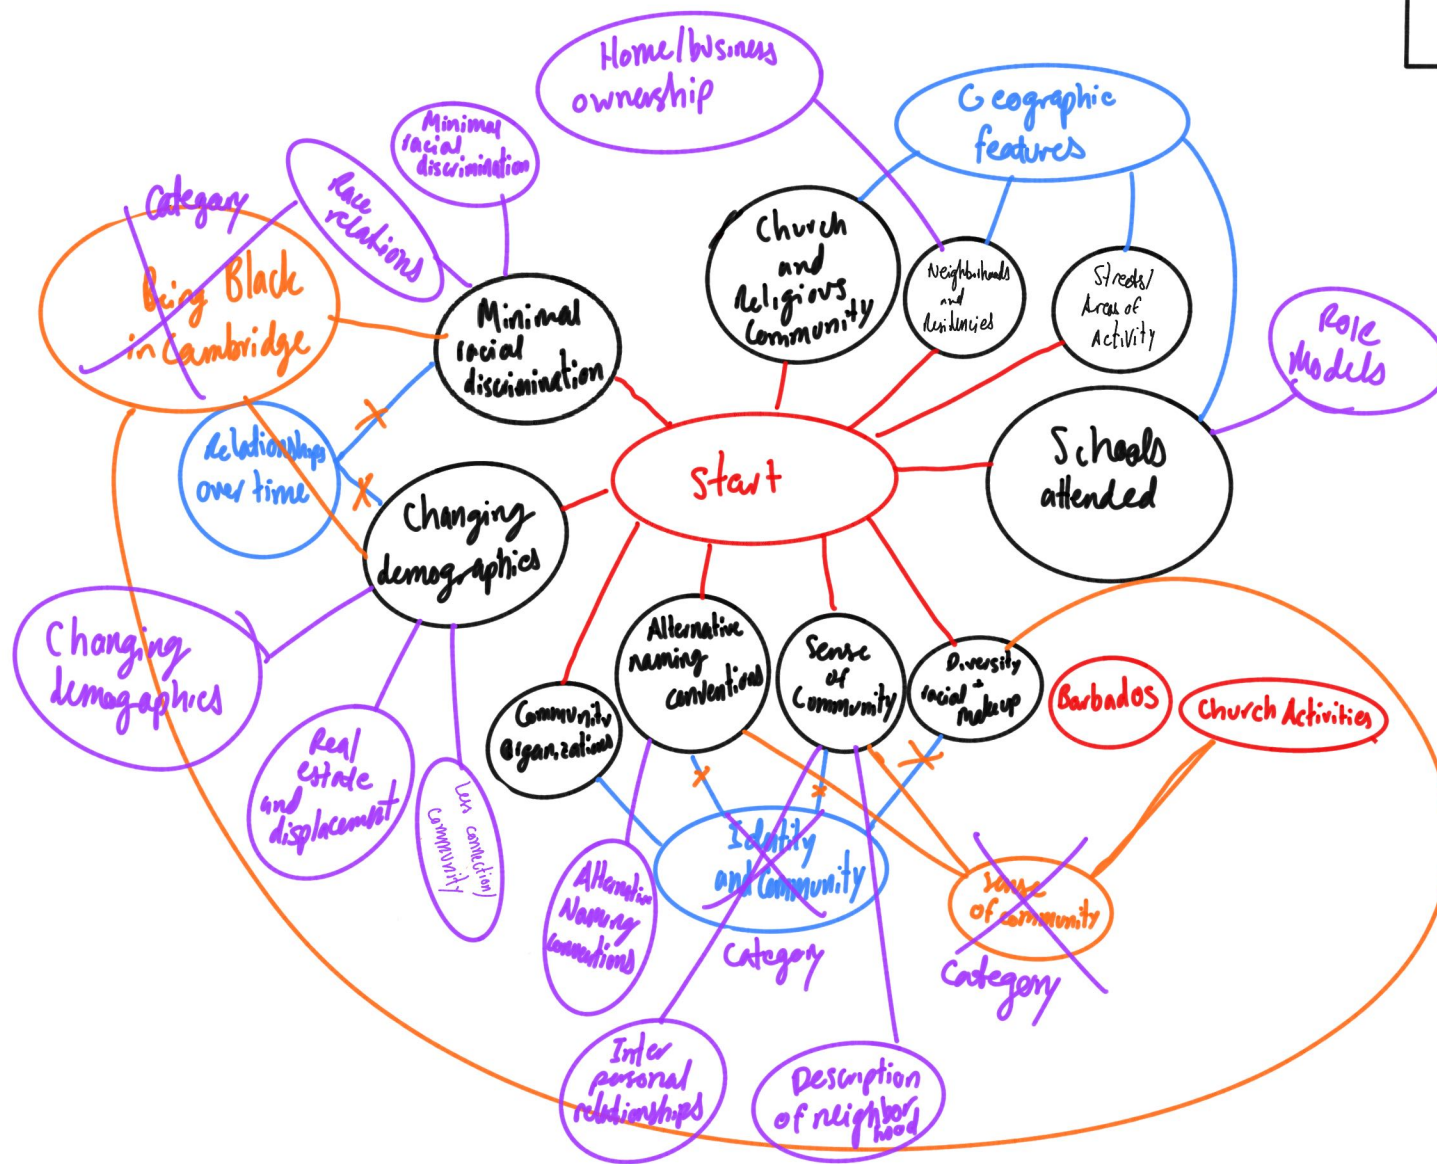

- expand critical GIS discussions to center Black feminist geographies
- determine the extent to which ArcGIS (and similar tools) are disrupted by mapping Black feminist geographies.

- Initial Keywords
- Codes (v1) 7/27
- Codes v2 7/27
- Codes v3 7/27 re-evaluated Braun et al., mind map is actually themes
- New keywords found that influenced coding

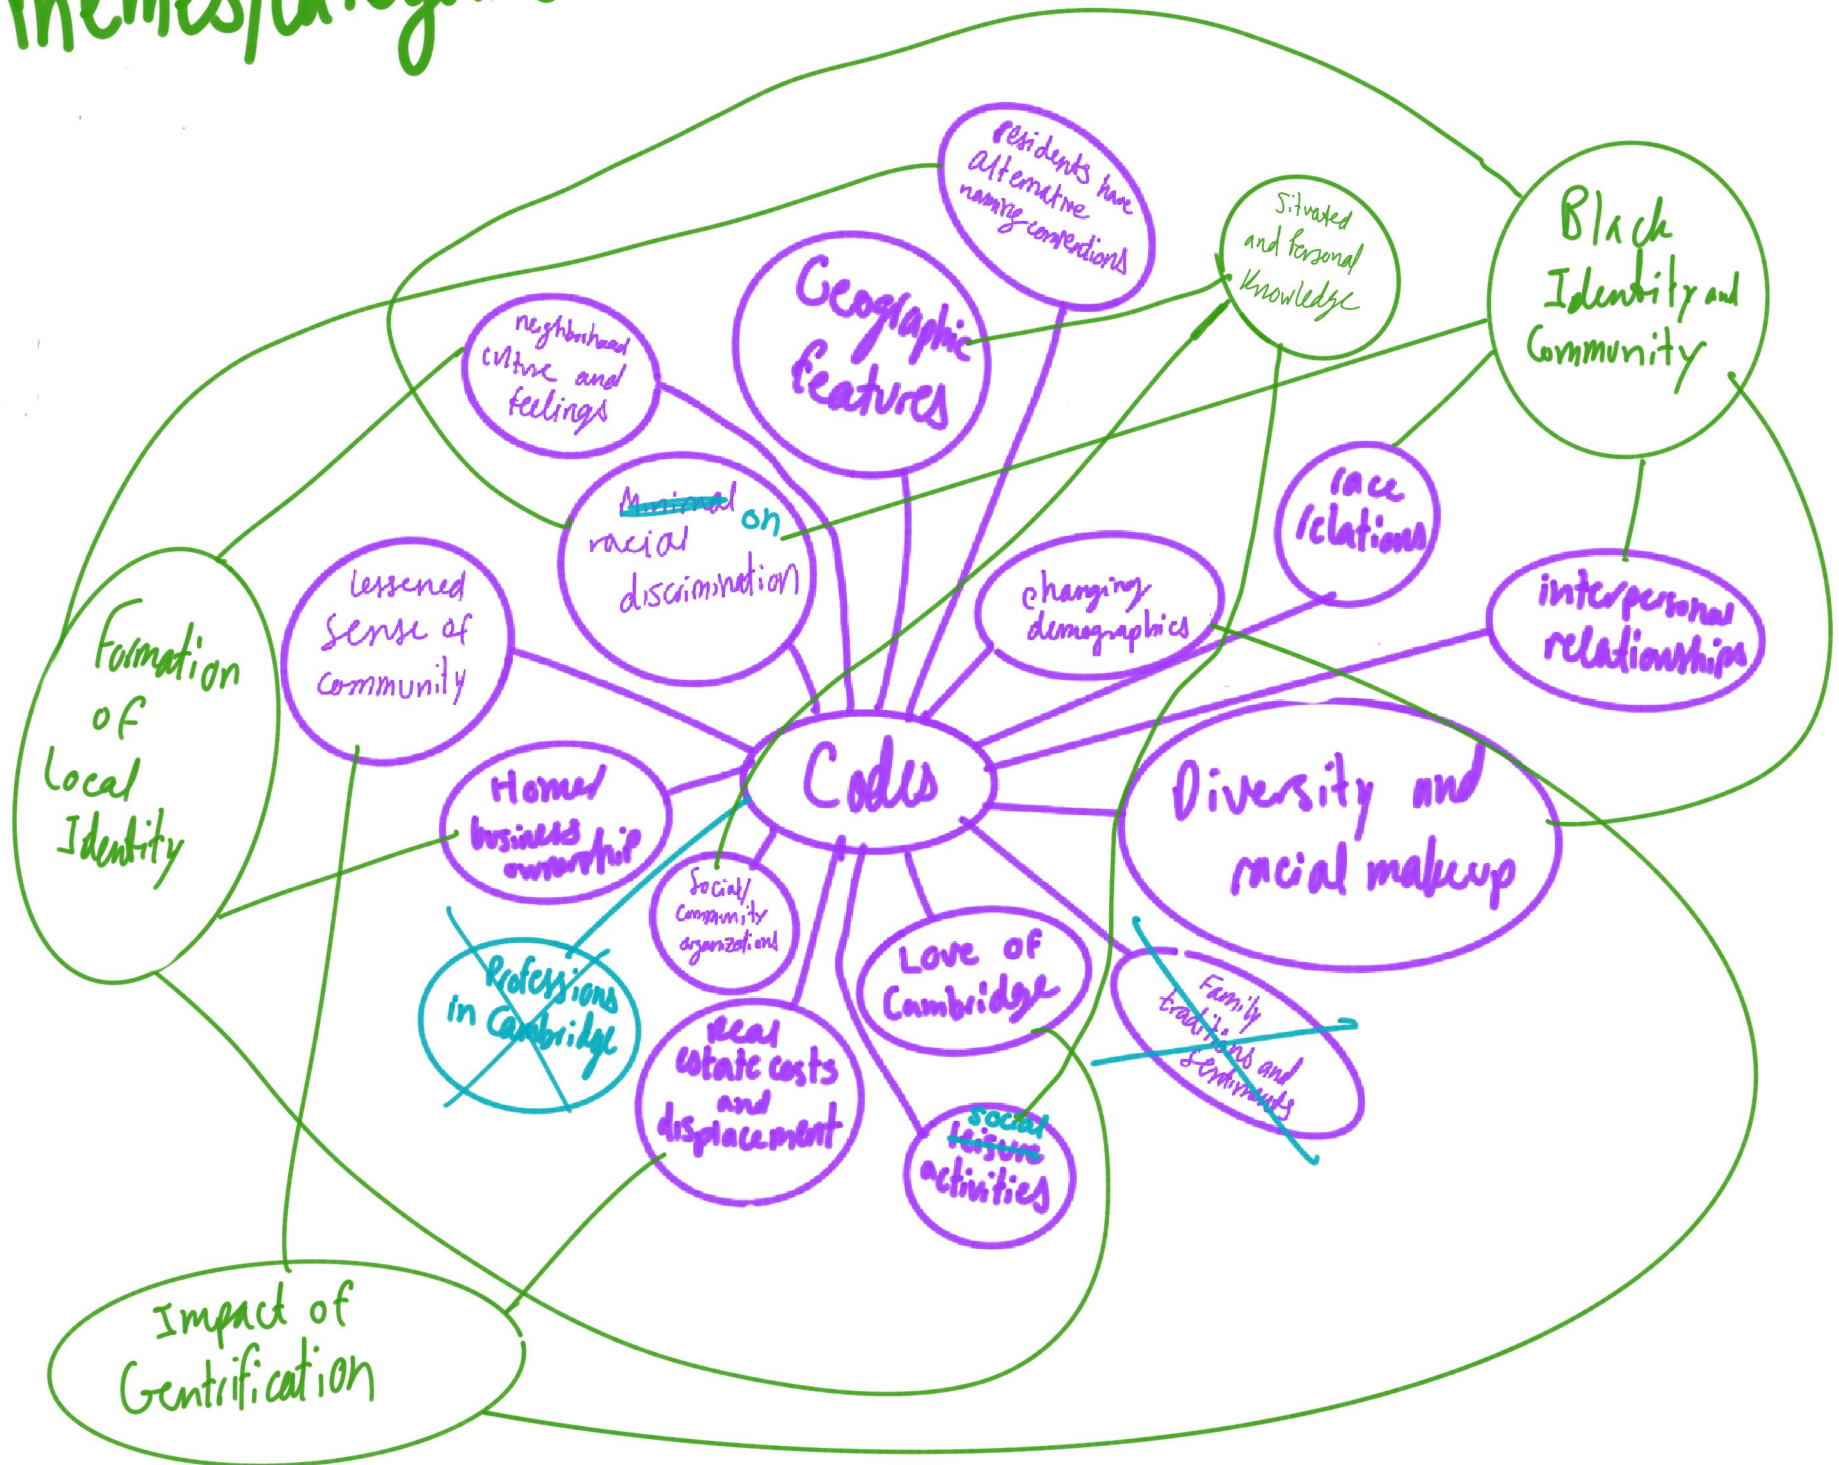

Notes

- Need to annotate in QIC to mark quotes to include in final map
- Names of churches = features, church activities = sense of community (7/27)
- Coding emotions?
- Marking themes/categories for later

- Codes V3 (7/27) - final corrections/iterating

7/29/26 Progressive Overview Map presented iteration 1 this morning

I am exploring

How mapping Black women's geographies in ArcGIS reveals new design insights that address the positivist assumptions of the platform

By mapping codes and themes identified from a thematic analysis of 8 oral histories documenting the mapping process to note friction, obstacles, discoveries, and adjustments during the processes

In order to

- expand the conversation of critical GIS to include Black feminist/BW geographies
- consider how to incorporate a critical and marginalized perspective in an industry standard tool

7/29 - Iteration 1 (Cont'd)

Color Gradient (Emotions)

Corresponding Codes

race and race relations mapped streets, social spaces (churches, schools, community centers), and leisure spaces on 3 layers.

This is my guidance system, allowing me to see where on the map emotions were felt.

Limited by divGIS online
- animations are time-based, used opacity instead
- learning curve makes this wholly inaccessible

Handwritten font and border style to indicate a created identity/self-identification

Layer/feature effects (blur, glow, shadow) evoke stronger emotional connotations

Can hide labels on the basemap to de-clutter and bring focus to the features from the oral histories

GIS Online is limited by browser speed cannot customize/edit map legend for clarity, causing some features to become simplified forget to save, so I took screenshots

and have to redo everything browser-based be autosave,

wtf.
